The Challenge

- ERP software that fails to take the needs of end users into account is unlikely to be seamlessly adopted
- Employees tend to feel overwhelmed by too much information, capabilities and complex user interfaces
- Users need access to only the tools that are relevant for them to perform
- Lack of real time visibility into accurate information hinders decision making and the ability to take immediate action
- The typical costs associated with customization tends to obstruct efforts to personalize user interfaces.

The Solution

- SYSPRO ERP is relevant to, and adapts to, every user within your organization. Users have one view of everything they need in order to operate in their environment and to perform in their particular role.
- A visual drag-and-drop interface that allows users to design their own personalized, single-screen view from any SYSPRO program, without the need for programming skills.
- Personalized and pre-defined KPI's and insights and are surfaced in real-time and automatically promoted to your users, alerting them to take immediate action.
- Social ERP provides a personal interface on which to instantly communicate, collaborate and conduct daily business – offering the equivalent of a newsfeed or notifications of critical business information.
- Artificial Intelligence and Machine Learning in SYSPRO surfaces previously unidentified trends, exceptions, and anomalies in your business directly to the user interface, without manual interference.

- Accelerate user uptake with a system that is personalized, engaging and easy to use
- Provide your workforce with all the relevant information and tools they need, when they need it
